Event Details: Tue Jun 14, 2011 - 10:00pm at The National Arts Club (15 Gramercy Park S., near Irving Pl.)

The National Arts Club is holding a special exhibit featuring quilts from two separate cultures called Pieced Together; Moscow Meets Harlem, the New York Daily News reports. The exhibit is part of the Russian American Foundation's Ninth Annual Russian Heritage Festival, and it features a look at the similarities and differences of quilting in the Russian and African-American cultures. The exhibit is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., from June 14-27, and admission is free.
